- Weekly revision timetable planners
- Subject trackers
- Past paper logs
- Progress reflection pages

How to use this planner

Step 1: Plan out your revision

- Use the Revision Timetable to organise your revision time effectively and keep it realistic.
- Fill in the Subject Tracker to get useful insights into your stronger and weaker areas.

Step 2: Learn and Revise

- Use ExamPilot's built-in tools to build a simple, effective revision routine that actually sticks.
- Plan your study using revision calendars to organise what you need to cover and when
- Stay productive with timers designed for focused study sessions
- Use the Pomodoro timer to break revision into manageable chunks and avoid burnout
- Keep everything structured so you always know what to do next
- Go to exam-pilot.co.uk for access to all features and more, included! (access code on last page)

Step 3: Test yourself

- Head onto your exam board's website and try out some of their past papers. This is a great way to understand your level that you are at compared to the level of the exam you will be sitting in a few weeks' time.
- Use the Past Paper Logger to log your score and reflect on what went well and also find where there is room for improvement.

Step 4: Improve for next time

- Go into the next set of revision ready to go and with more understanding of where needs work and where you are smashing it.
